REPUBLICAN

DELEGATE ELECTION AND CONVENTION.

To the Republicans of Clark County, Ohio:

YOU are hereby notified that meetings will be held in each of the voting precincts of said county, on Monday Evening, August 3, 1885,

at the usual place of voting, unless otherwise provided, for the selection of delegates to nominate candidates for the following county offices:

Tuesday, 10:30 A. M., August 4, 1885,

at the Wigwam, in the City of Springfield, to nominate candidates for the following county offices:

1. Representative.
2. Commissioner.
3. Inferior Court Judge.
4. Coroner.
5. Surveyor.

The delegates to said Convention shall be selected in the following manner:

That on the evening of August 3, 1885, the Republican electors of Clark County, Ohio, shall assemble in each voting precinct, in said county at their usual voting places, or at such places as the Central Committee of each precinct shall provide, which place of meeting shall be designated by the electors of each precinct, and no vote shall be counted unless the electors of each precinct shall be present.

The Central Committee, or in its absence, some one designated by him, shall call the meeting to order at 7 p. m. in the county precinct, and at 8 p. m. in the city precinct, and they shall proceed to elect a Chairman, Secretary, and a person to be authorized to draw the names from the box, and a Committee consisting of seven reliable Republicans.

The officers above designated shall be elected in such manner as the caucus may decide, except the committee of seven, which shall be elected as follows: No nomination shall be made, except the public voter at the caucus shall write the name of one suitable person on a ballot and place it in a box or box provided for that purpose; these ballots shall be collected and counted in the presence of the meeting, and the seven receiving the highest number of votes shall constitute said committee; should there not be seven persons voted for on the first ballot, then the electors shall be declared elected to said committee, and a new ballot shall be taken as before to elect the remainder of said committee; should any person receive a tie vote, said tie shall be determined by lot in such manner as the caucus may decide.

The said committee of seven shall then impartially select the names of twice the number of which said precinct is entitled to delegates in said County Convention; they shall then place the names so selected in a box, which shall be thoroughly shaken; the names shall then be drawn one at a time by a person blindfolded and chosen for the purpose. The first half of the names drawn out shall be the delegates and the other half in the order of their drawing shall be the Alternates to said County Convention.

The basis of representation at said Convention shall be one delegate to every 25 votes cast for James G. Blaine for President at the November, 1880, election, and one delegate for every fraction of 10 or more.

All Republicans who voted for said James G. Blaine for such office at said election, unless prevented by unavoidable absence, sickness, or other cause, and who will support the nominees of said Convention, shall be entitled to vote and participate in said meetings.

The various precincts shall be entitled to the following number of delegates:

Also, each precinct meeting shall return the names of suitable persons for Central Committee of said precinct for the ensuing year.

By order of JOHN W. FARMER, Chairman.

J. P. GOODY, Secretary.

Whenever one goes from this side of the ocean to London, he is generally pretty sure to find one or more Americans floating about in the upper strata of society. Mary Anderson and Mr. Lowell have been absorbing what little attention the English people could spare from Egypt and India, for a year or two, and even with so many Americans in England as have been in that country for the few years "last past" the people were so ravenous that they had to come over here in swarms to see more of the Yankees. And to crown all, Mr. Cyrus W. Field, the most distinguished member of the most distinguished American family—the father of ocean telegraphic cables and the owner of a fine evening newspaper, the New York Mail and Express—goes over the brine to show the English how to celebrate the fact of American Independence, and to make them participate in the proceedings. So on the fourth of July, Mr. Field gave a dinner to U. S. Minister Phelps and others, at the Buckingham Palace Hotel, (near the Westminster Abbey and the Parliament buildings), and besides Mr. Phelps there were present, the Duke of Argyll, the head of the Campbell clan; Lord North and Lord Haughton; Hon. George F. Edmunds, U. S. Senator from Vermont; Mr. John Bright, M. P.; Sir Thomas Fowell Buxton, Sir Daniel Gooch, M. P.; Sir George Elliot, M. P.; Prof. Sir William Thomson, Sir James Anderson, Mr. Henry M. Stanley, Dr. Waller (American Consul General), Dr. Russell Reynolds, Mr. Potter, M. P., Mr. P. Hugh, Mr. Henry White (United States Legation), Mr. W. H. Preece, and Dr. Henry D. Noyes (New York).

After grace had been said by Archdeacon Farrar, Mr. Field rose and said that he had that day sent a message to be transmitted by a friend of his to General Grant, and had received the following reply by telegraph: "I have delivered your telegram to General Grant, who was somewhat affected by the kind remembrance of him by yourself and your distinguished friends. Mrs. Grant was also delighted that you should have sent the message. The statement that the general endeavors to disguise his weakness from his family and friends is simply erroneous."

Mr. Field then proposed "The President of the United States," which was drunk with all the honors, after which he dispatched a congratulatory telegram to the President.

Mr. Field then proposed "The Queen," adding: "Of her Majesty I need only say that she is as much beloved in the United States as in the British Empire." The toast was drunk with enthusiasm.

The chairman then proposed "Prosperity to the United States of America and to the United Kingdom of Great Britain."

It was, he said, gratifying to know that the Declaration of American Independence was now regarded by the entire British nation, no less than by the American people, as one of the happiest events in the history of the human race. He had the honor to couple with the toast the names of Mr. Phelps, the American Minister, and of the Duke of Argyll.

From ample reports of the proceedings in the London Daily News, the Standard, the Morning Post, and the Observer (London's Sunday paper), we find that Mr. Phelps made a happy response, after which the Duke of Argyll spoke, confessing that Great Britain was in the wrong in its attitude during the Revolutionary war, and expressing his great admiration for George Washington, and closed by giving voice to his feelings of gratification over the fact that the war of twenty years ago had destroyed slavery and showed that it was not the corner stone of our Republic.

Mr. John Bright followed, eloquently no doubt, as it would be impossible for him not to be eloquent, but he sang, nevertheless, the same old song of Free Trade, and lectured Americans because they persisted in fixing a tariff on articles of import in such a way as to promote and protect their own interests—precisely as Great Britain always has done and now does. Mr. Bright said words he had the taste to do this. Some years ago he was visited at his house by Mr. Shellabarger, (whom he had invited), and at once began to "fill him up" with free trade, in the usual way.

At the close Mr. Field read the following telegram from President Cleveland:

I have received with heartfelt gratitude the kind sentiments expressed by you and your assembled guests. I am exceedingly pleased to know that the hearts of our citizens now in your company turn homeward with patriotic warmth while they celebrate the anniversary of American independence, and that, as they return thanks for all that God has done for us they are joined by kind friends, who, though illustrating the greatness of another nation, can heartily rejoice in the success and prosperity of our government and people.

The American, of Philadelphia, has this significant paragraph:

In the exercise of their discretion in the matter of appointments, Mr. Cleveland's subordinates show frequent lapses of judgment. It may well be supposed that all the available offices could be filled with Democrats without falling back upon the criminal class. Yet in two Ohio appointments in one week, the persons selected were men who had been convicted of crime. Ordinary slips as to the character of a nominee to an office may be charged to ignorance or oversight. But the selection of convicted criminals seem to indicate definite unconsciousness as to public opinion.

He met those who'd discovered it ages before.

Francis S. Underwood, Bret Hart's

successor at Glasgow, is one of "them literary fellows," also, and will probably let the Scotchman run the office, in his own way, as he did under Hart's administration.

The National American, the Prohibition organ at St. Louis, says:

Dr. Leonard's candidacy in Ohio can accomplish nothing but the defeat of the Republican party and the election of Democracy and free whisky. It does not need to accomplish more. Why, then, should his followers not vote the Democratic ticket straight?

What is the use to go around the bush, brethren?

We warn Mr. Hendricks that if he ever becomes a candidate for the Presidency

the Republicans will plaster the dead walls of the country with lithographs representing him as he appeared on the sea beach

in his bathing suit. That will settle him.

The people will not want such a thing as

that in the Executive Mansion.

Rev. Sam Jones tells of a hard-looking old soaker who replied to Bob Ingersoll,

when he said there was no hell: "Be mighty sure with your proofs, Bob, for there are a great many of us who are depending on ye." "Hard-looking old soakers" would do well to look into matters for themselves.

Bob Ingersoll would be a poor stick to tie

to, in a cyclone or an earthquake.

To show the size of Texas the New York Evening Post remarks that "it could absorb Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont,

Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut,

New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania,

Delaware, Maryland, Ohio and Indiana,

and still have enough space left for an other State of Connecticut's size." Its cotton crop is estimated at 1,500,000 bales, and its population, increasing at the rate of 10 per cent. a year, is now about 2,000,000.

The Boston Globe, a Democratic paper,

says:

Chairman Barger, of the Democratic State

Committee of Ohio, has been appointed

Pension Agent for the Buckeye State. That's the kind, Mr. President. Do so some more.

To this the Boston Herald, an independent paper, with Democratic leanings,

responds as follows:

Our Washington correspondent says that Barger has a bad record, that "he was dishonorably dismissed during the war for having forsaken his company in an Ohio

regiment in a battle, that sentence

being inflicted upon him in spite of his effort to resign."

That is the last kind of a man to be selected to pay pensions to brave veterans,

and we hope the mistake will be corrected.

Of course the President knows nothing of this.

Republican editors who are trying to create an impression that there is rank dissension in the Democratic party of Ohio will not be allowed to forget that they have a rank quarrel of their own. The old division between the Stalwarts and Half-breeds still prevails. Garfield dead appears to be more influential in Ohio Republican politics than any man living. General Beatty was reputed at the Springfield convention by a

Stalwart, and especially because he signified

his sympathy with Conkling in the famous enrolment with the Garfield administration.

Then, there is the conflict between the

Foster and Sherman factions as to the United States Senatorship, and the threatened war between the Sherman and Blaine wings in the matter of the Presidency.—Cincinnati

Enquirer.

The Enquirer cannot scare us by that sort of talk. What we want is Democratic Harmony in Ohio, with an H as big as a haystack, and internal communion and dissension in the Republican ranks. Then we shall whip the Democrats so badly

that they can hardly gather themselves

up after the election. In the Honday campaign there was a fair fight between

Democratic factions and Hooley made fatal mistakes as a campaigner, and the united and harmonious Republicans left the Democrats to beat themselves, and they beat us! We do not care for any more

Democratic Dissension and Republican

Harmony of those sorts. See it, Mr. Enquirer?

Summers Liver Regulator, purely vegetable, is the medicine generally used in the South to arouse the torpid Liver to healthy action.

It acts with extraordinary power and efficiency on the Liver and Kidneys!

The action of the Regulator is free from nausea or griping. It is most effective in starting the action of the Liver, causing the bile to act as a cathartic. When the bile is secreted into the stomach, the Regulator is an active purgative, and the removal of the bile will regulate the bowels and impart vigor and health to the whole system.
